

- ▶ In yesterday's session, investors paid attention to economic data in the US pointing to a further cool down in the labor market and to the BoE monetary policy meeting, where interest rates were kept unchanged at 5.25%, as expected.
- ▶ Governor Andrew Bailey paved the way to see interest rate cuts this year and said that there could be more reductions than investors currently expect. In the US, initial claims rose last week by 22k to 231k, the largest figure since last August.
- ▶ In this context, yields on sovereign bonds rose in the euro area, with peripheral spreads widening modestly, and declined in the US. Equities rose in Europe and in the US, boosted by the real estate, utilities and energy sectors.
- ▶ Elsewhere, the price of the barrel of Brent rose towards $84 and the US dollar weakened against most peers, leaving the euro fluctuating below, but close, to $1.08.
- ▶ Today the focus will be on the preliminary May data for the University of Michigan sentiment indicators.
