

- ▶ In the latest session, investor caution prevailed amid lingering concerns over the profitability of AI, a somewhat more hawkish tone from the Fed, and an escalation of tensions between the US and Iran.
- ▶ Major equity markets moved lower. Treasury yields declined across the entire curve, with the 10-year yield falling back to levels last seen 18 months ago. A similar move was observed in the euro area, alongside a modest widening of peripheral spreads.
- ▶ This morning, markets have opened with a clear flight-to-quality move following the escalation of the conflict involving Iran. Equity futures are broadly lower and the dollar is gaining ground, while Brent crude prices are edging towards $80 amid warnings over the security of shipping traffic through the Strait of Hormuz.
