

- ▶ During Friday's session, sentiment moderated following the recent risk-on momentum, as investors headed into the weekend focused on developments in the Middle East and the prospect of US–Iran talks. Brent crude traded around USD 95/barrel, while TTF gas declined by around 5% to €43/MWh.
- ▶ Sovereign bond yields rose on both sides of the Atlantic. In the US, Treasury yields moved slightly higher after headline inflation increased by 0.9pp to 3.3% YoY in March, marking the largest rise since June 2022, driven by a surge in energy prices. Euro area yields also rose, with peripheral spreads widening modestly.
- ▶ Equity markets were mixed, with gains in Asia on hopes of progress in negotiations, while euro area indices were broadly flat and US markets edged lower. Safe-haven assets eased, with the US dollar weakening slightly (EUR/USD around 1.17) and gold posting modest losses.
